

Study Objective

Studying Business Law gives you the ability to solve practical business problems with legal knowledge and in business contexts. Business lawyers are in demand combination strategists. The practical legal training stands with 50 percent of all courses in the foreground of the study. To connect these with economic contents which approximately cover 30 percent of the courses is very important. Enough time remains for providing the students with social skills (20 percent) as foreign languages, computer skills and social competence, taking into account gender-specific features by focusing on only business-related areas of law.
